THE ECOLOGICAL GARDEN

Lars Brydesen, Denmark, 1981

30 min. | DK/Documentary

There is an increasing interest in growing one's own vegetables, and an even greater interest in growing them without the use of pesticides. Actually, with a determined effort it is possible to reach yields which in terms of quantity are equal to and in terms of quality lie far above what can be reached with fertilizers and crop sprays. This system is called ecological gardening.
