

Klaus Kjeldsen, Denmark, 2001

25 min. | DK/Documentary | Children's films

Club house locker rooms where the under-15 footballers hang out: A boyhood universe with its rivalries, course jokes and comradeship; the big guys and the little guys. The sequences are devoid of commentary; the camera is present from the moment the boys arrive, while they change, and work each other up before the match, until they come off the pitch, exhausted and down in the dumps but still with enough energy for a towel fight or a scuffle in the showers.
