1700 METRES FROM THE FUTURE

Ulla Boje Rasmussen, Denmark, 1990
88 min. | DK/Documentary

A documentary about a small society - 15 adults and a boy at the age of nine - who live isolated in the village of Gásadalur on the Faroe Islands »at the edge of the western world where Europe meets the Atlantic Ocean«. Gásadalur is the last village without road access on the Faroe Islands. Myths and legends are living elements. The Filmgives an insight into the inhabitants' conditionsof life and their expectations towards a planned tunnel through the mountains. 1700 metres from the future.
