In the setting of modern urban Stockholm Erika is part of the upper middle class. Owner of her own apartment, a healthy relationship, a healthy social life and a solid higher range income from her daily work as an interior decorator. The timing is perfect. She is ready for the next step in life. A step that will take her far away from everything she knows. A step into obscurity. Mentally bruised Erika starts group therapy and enters a new world with new acquaintances. A group that has it's own mind and method on how to deal with the anxieties and joy of life. In the pursuit of a life-changing adventure, the group seeks a place of absolute anonymity. A place where they may re-boot their personas and start anew. They scream 'Fuck Freud!' and start checking into hotels.
