Søren and Malene met and fell in love by playing and improvising music together. They had a child and shortly after a tumor was discovered in Søren's brain. It was removed and treated with radiation. A week later it was confirmed that Malene had leukemia. The couple's everyday life has been strongly influenced by endless treatments and they haven't been playing music together for a long time. This film creates three rooms where the participants can play and once again find their common tone.
